

WORLD AIDS DAY

Achieving an AIDS-Free Generation through Science-based Prevention Strategies

Presented by CDC's Center for Global Health, Division of Global HIV/AIDS and hosted by the Center for AIDS Research, Emory University

Wednesday, November 30, 2011
3:00 pm – 5:00 pm

Woodruff Health Sciences Administration Building Auditorium
Emory University, 1440 Clifton Road, Atlanta, GA

A reception with refreshments, sponsored by Emory's Center for AIDS Research, will follow the lecture.

Welcoming Remarks

Carlos del Rio, MD

Chair, Hubert Department of Global Health,
Rollins School of Public Health, Emory University;
Co-Director, Center for AIDS Research, Emory University

Kevin M. De Cock, MD

Director, Center for Global Health, CDC

Speakers

James Curran, MD, MPH

The Evolution of the AIDS Epidemic
Dean, Rollins School of Public Health, Emory University

Kevin Fenton, MD, PhD

The Changing Face of AIDS in the United States
Director, National Center for HIV/AIDS, Viral Hepatitis,
STD, and TB Prevention, Office of Infectious Diseases, CDC

Janet Moore, MD

Prevention Strategies that Make a Difference
Deputy Director (Acting), Division of Global
HIV/AIDS, Center for Global Health, CDC

John Blandford, PhD

Projecting the Economics and Impact of Combination Prevention Strategies
Chief, Health Economics, Systems and Integration Branch,
Division of Global HIV/AIDS, Center for Global Health, CDC

Deborah Birx, MD

On the Path to an AIDS-Free Generation
Director, Division of Global HIV/AIDS,
Center for Global Health, CDC

Sandra L. Thurman, Moderator

Senior Advisor for Strategy and Development,
Division of Global HIV/AIDS, Center for Global Health, CDC;
Director, Interfaith Health Program, Rollins School of Public Health, Emory University

For more information, please contact
GAPpolicycomm@cdc.gov

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services
Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
Center for Global Health
Division of Global HIV/AIDS