The Alma Mater

In the heart of dear old Emory
Where the sun doth shine,
That is where our hearts are turning
‘Round old Emory’s shrine.

We will ever sing thy praises,
Sons and daughters true.
Hail we now our Alma Mater,
Hail the Gold and Blue!

Tho’ the years around us gather,
Crowned with love and cheer,
Still the memory of Old Emory
Grows to us more dear.

We will ever sing thy praises,
Sons and daughters true.
Hail we now our Alma Mater,
Hail the Gold and Blue!

Emory University Commencement 2016

Presentation of the Marion Luther Brittain Service Award

This award, symbolic of all honors bestowed on students by the University, is an expression of gratitude for service performed without expectation of reward or recognition. The award was established at Emory in 1942 through a bequest from a distinguished Emory alumnus, former President Brittain of the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Nowmee Syeda Shehab 16C

Nowmee Syeda Shehab, a graduating senior majoring in women's, gender, and sexuality studies, has been named the 2016 recipient of the University's highest student honor, the Marion Luther Brittain Award, recognizing meritorious service to the institution.

Since high school, Shehab has been an engaged scholar, advocate, and leader who passionately embraces the challenges and controversies around social justice issues, always with a profound love and respect for other people.

Early in her Emory experience, Shehab volunteered with the Office of LGBT (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender) Life as a facilitator for a queer students of color discussion group. Later, as a leader of Emory Pride, the University's undergraduate LGBT and ally student organization, she worked to increase campus access and inclusion for people of all sexual orientations.

As a developer of the RespectCon conference, Shehab helped shape its 2013 theme, “Sexual Violence Prevention through a Social Justice Lens,” making it the only national conference at the time with such a focus. In 2014, she was a key conference organizer and presenter.

In 2015, Shehab was instrumental in bringing to our campus the national Elect Her program, which equips college women to run for student government and future political office. She also served on the advisory council for the Center for Diversity and Inclusion and as a programming assistant with the Center for Women.

A lead organizer of the Freedom at Emory coalition, Shehab encouraged the University to provide financial aid to undocumented students, which the institution subsequently began in 2015. She has since focused her efforts with the organization on state-level advocacy to repeal the Georgia Board of Regents policy banning undocumented students from accessing public higher education.

Shehab's commitment to activism and service is not limited to Emory or Georgia. Her previous positions also include policy intern with the National Center for Transgender Equality and leadership intern with the Center for Women.

Nowmee Syeda Shehab is not only a worthy recipient of the Brittain Award, she is an outstanding example of Emory's commitment, as set forth in the institution's mission, to “apply knowledge in the service of humanity.”

Presentation of the University Scholar/Teacher Award

Chosen by the University president from nominations by the deans on behalf of the United Methodist Church Board of Higher Education and Ministry.

Nancy J. Thompson 71C 77PH
Professor of Behavioral Sciences and Health Education
Rollins School of Public Health

Emory alumna Nancy Thompson, professor of public health, has had a breathtaking career in teaching and scholarship across a broad spectrum of public health issues. She played an important role in building both the Rollins School of Public Health and its master of public health (MPH) degree program. She earned an MPH in 1977 when public health was a program within the Emory School of Medicine. She helped form the Department of Behavioral Sciences and Health, where she currently is housed. Thompson also holds joint appointments in the Department of Epidemiology as well as Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences.

She has centered her research interests on injury, violence, and mental health. Thompson has been the principal investigator of numerous federally funded projects, among them the Coordinating Center for the Managing Epilepsy Well network, a collaboration among universities funded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) for research in epilepsy self-management.

In that regard, Thompson recently spearheaded Project UPLIFT, a program designed to reduce or eliminate depression in epilepsy patients through mindfulness and cognitive therapy. Offered through the Epilepsy Foundation, it has had a significant impact.

As a scholar, Thompson has published more than 80 peer-reviewed articles and 10 book chapters, and she has coauthored a book on injury prevention that received a CDC Communications Roundtable Award.

She has developed more than a half-dozen new courses and maintains an active teaching schedule. Since 2009 Thompson has been a Center for Faculty Development and Excellence Teaching Mentor.

Thompson's professional service has included serving an 11-year term on the editorial board of the American Journal of Sports Medicine, consulting to evaluate the national home office and Southeast division of the American Cancer Society, and serving a 12-year term on the Institutional Review Board of the Shepherd Center.

Her myriad honors include the Thomas Fort Sellers Award for Exemplifying the Ideals of Public Health in 1992; the Rollins School of Public Health Professor of the Year in 1994 and 2004; the National Center for Injury Control's Collaborative Success Award in 1999; the University's highest teaching honor, the Emory Williams Award, in 2007; and the Rebecca Goldberg-Kaufman Ethical Neuropsychiatry Award from the American Epilepsy Society in 2012.

Presentation of the Thomas Jefferson Award

Awarded each year to a faculty member or administrative officer for significant service to the University through personal activities, influence, and leadership.

Eloise B. Carter 78G 83PhD
Professor of Biology
Division of Natural Science and Mathematics
Oxford College

That the world is wondrous we know in part by the superb teaching of Eloise Carter. Former students speak of still remembering certain elements of the natural world because of the way she introduced them to it, through equal parts wise pedagogy and infectious regard for nonhuman life.

Undergraduate education is Carter's passion—one reason she occupies such an honored place at Oxford College, which is known for the strength of its teaching. She received the Emory Williams Teaching Award in 2004, the University's highest recognition for excellence in teaching, and was honored with both of Oxford's teaching awards—the Fleming Award in 1997 and the Mizell Award in 2008.

Beyond her work with undergraduates, Carter leads the Oxford Institute for Environmental Education, which offers a weeklong... summer program for K–12 teachers to develop inquiry-based instruction using their schoolyards for scientific investigation. The institute was named the Georgia Wildlife Federation’s Conservation Educators of the Year, the organization’s highest honor.

In the mid-1980s Carter and former Oxford College Dean William Murdy published a landmark treatise that assessed Emory’s natural forest as a unique environmental and teaching resource, and advocated preservation of its rare and diverse species. That report continues to guide Emory’s land use.

Carter and Murdy collaborated on a book chronicling plants found on Stone Mountain and Arabia Mountain—nearby rock habitats containing unique species. In addition to dozens of presentations and papers, Carter is also a coauthor of Investigating Biology, now in its eighth edition.

For nine years, Carter was the faculty lead for the newly opened Oxford Science Building. Given that all Oxford students take at least one laboratory course, this new building will touch the education of every student.

It is a testament to Carter’s enduring contributions at Oxford College that students who express interest in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) go on to graduate in STEM disciplines at higher rates than students nationwide.

The following awards will be presented during the diploma ceremony at the school of each recipient.

The Emory Williams Awards for Distinguished Teaching

The University's oldest awards for teaching were established in 1972 by alumnus Emory Williams 32C. Awards in the arts and sciences are determined by a committee of Emory College faculty. Emory College gives three of these awards each year, while the other schools of the University each give one award.

Authorization to Confer Degrees

The conferring of degrees is authorized in formal session by the Board of Trustees of Emory University on the recommendation of the president and the faculties. At today’s ceremony, Chair John F. Morgan 67OX 69B symbolically will authorize President Wagner to confer degrees upon the graduates, including the recipients of honorary degrees.

Honorary Degrees

Raymond Danowski
Fine Arts Dealer and Poetry Collector
Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa

Raymond Danowski is an American-born fine arts dealer and collector with an international presence and reputation. Collecting more than 75,000 rare books, posters, periodicals, and recordings over several decades, he compiled a nearly complete record of all published English-language poetry in the 20th century as well as valuable earlier materials. The Raymond Danowski Poetry Library, which Emory acquired in 2004, is believed by many scholars to be the most important collection of English-language poetry in the world. Highlights of the collection include a rare, signed first edition of Walt Whitman’s Leaves of Grass; a first edition of T. S. Eliot’s Prufrock and Other Observations inscribed to his close friend Emily Hale; Anne Sexton’s personal, annotated copy of Sylvia Plath’s Ariel; one of 11 known copies of William Carlos Williams’s first book, Poems; and limited editions by Langston Hughes, with his own handwritten corrections. The collection offers insight into the milieu of the poetry world at a particular time. For example, among the more than 1,000 volumes by W. H. Auden is a copy of a book of early poems published privately when he was a student at Oxford University.

In 2008, the first major exhibition of the collection, Democratic Vistas: Exploring the Raymond Danowski Poetry Library, highlighted the qualities of the collection. Last year, the Robert W. Woodruff Library exhibited rare items from the Danowski collection, including counterculture materials, as part of the B-Side Modernism conference. Another recent exhibition drawing from the Raymond Danowski Poetry Library was in celebration of 20 years of Poets House’s Poetry Walk across the Brooklyn Bridge, featuring a powerful array of poets writing from and about New York City. The Raymond Danowski Poetry Library is a living entity, constantly expanding and connecting with contemporary work, thanks to new acquisitions, an ongoing reading series, and other initiatives.

Danowski upholds the highest standards of integrity and excellence, and his intellectual curiosity and passion for purpose serve as an inspiration to Emory students, faculty, and staff members. A unique University asset, the Raymond Danowski Poetry Library opens a doorway for exploration for students, scholars, artists, and educators alike.

Mr. Danowski will be presented by the dean of Emory College of Arts and Sciences, Robin Forman.

Amartya K. Sen
Economist and Nobel Laureate
Doctor of Letters, honoris causa

Amartya Sen was awarded the Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences in 1998, in recognition of his groundbreaking research into welfare economics and the understanding of how economic policies affect nations and communities.

Born and educated on the campus of Visva Bharati in Santiniketa, India, he went on to study at Presidency College in Calcutta and at Trinity College in Cambridge, where he earned a PhD degree in economics and, as a Prize Fellow, studied moral philosophy. His early research into poverty and famine grew out of personal experience as a nine-year-old boy, when he witnessed the 1943 Bengal famine that claimed more than three million lives. In the decades since his book Poverty and Famines (1982), his research has ranged over social choice theory, economic theory, ethics and political philosophy, welfare economics, theory of measurement, decision theory, development economics, public health, and gender studies.

Sen has taught at many of the world’s leading universities, including Oxford, Cambridge, Calcutta, MIT, the London School of Economics, Cornell, and Berkeley. He was, until 2004, the master of Trinity College, Cambridge, and currently is Thomas W. Lamont University Professor and Professor of Economics and Philosophy at Harvard University.

Widely honored, Sen has served as president of the Econometric Society, the American Economic Association, the Indian Economic Association, and the International Economic Association. He was formerly honorary president of OXFAM and is now its honorary adviser. His many international honors include the Commandeur

Temple Grandin
Animal Behaviorist and Autism Expert
Doctor of Letters, honoris causa

Temple Grandin is a well-known researcher in the field of animal science and a professor at Colorado State University. She has become a leading advocate for the autism community by telling her own life story. Through speaking engagements, books, and the film Temple Grandin, she has opened a window into understanding life from the perspective of a person with autism spectrum disorder. This range of complex neurodevelopment disorders is characterized by social impairments, communication difficulties, and often repetitive, stereotyped patterns of behavior. Her academic research into making livestock farming more humane is informed by her deep insight into the minds of animals that she believes comes from her autism. Grandin also has developed practical solutions to improve the lives of autistic individuals.

Grandin became nationally known after appearing in Oliver Sacks’s 1995 book, An Anthropologist on Mars, the title of which is derived from Grandin’s description of how she feels in social settings. By that time, she had already made a name for herself in autism advocacy circles. Grandin first spoke publicly about autism in the 1980s, at the request of one of the founders of the Autism Society of America. In addition to autism advocacy, Grandin is well-known for her work regarding animal welfare, neurology, and philosophy. Her books, including Animals in Translation and Animals Make Us Human, have garnered critical acclaim. In 2010, Time named her one of the 100 most influential people.

After graduating from a boarding school for gifted children, Grandin earned her bachelor’s degree in psychology from Franklin Pierce College, a master’s degree in animal science from Arizona State University, and a doctoral degree in animal science from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. In addition to her work as a professor at Colorado State University and best-selling author, she is a frequent consultant to the livestock industry on animal behavior.

As Emory University continues its significant work through the Marcus Institute and the Emory Autism Resource Center, it is fitting that the University acknowledge Grandin’s leadership.

Dr. Grandin will be presented by the dean of the School of Medicine, Christian Larsen.
de la Légion d’Honneur from France, the Edinburgh Medal from the United Kingdom, and the George Marshall Award and the National Humanities Medal from the United States. His books have been translated into more than 30 languages.

Sen’s work on social choice theory and welfare economics revolutionized the field of economics and brought a moral compass to classical economic theory. Inherently interdisciplinary, his scholarship combines economics and moral philosophy in a way befitting Emory’s emphasis on global health, development practices, and the transcendence of disciplinary boundaries in service of intellectual innovation.

Dr. Sen will be presented by the dean of the Laney Graduate School, Lisa Tedesco.

President’s Medal

William H. Foege

Renowned Epidemiologist and Humanitarian

William Foege is the renowned epidemiologist credited with devising the strategy to eradicate smallpox as portrayed in his book: House on Fire: The Fight to Eradicate Smallpox. He attended Pacific Lutheran University, received a medical degree from the University of Washington, and a master’s degree in public health from Harvard University. He has written more than 125 professional publications.

Foege previously served on the faculty of Emory, where he was the Presidential Distinguished Professor of International Health at the Rollins School of Public Health. He also served as executive director and fellow for health policy at The Carter Center and as a senior medical adviser for the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

Foege, winner of the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 2012 and recipient of a 1986 honorary degree from Emory, has championed many issues, but his focus has been children in the developing world. He is a strong proponent of disease eradication and control and has taken an active role in the elimination of Guinea worm disease, polio, measles, and river blindness. By writing and lecturing extensively, Foege has broadened public awareness of these issues and brought them to the forefront of domestic and international health policies. He received the 2009 CDC Foundation Hero Award for improving health for some of the world’s most vulnerable populations by influencing public health policy around the world and by bringing new partners together to address important public health challenges.

Foege served as chief of the Smallpox Eradication Program of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and was appointed director of the CDC in 1977. In 1984, he and several colleagues formed the Task Force for Child Survival, a working group for the World Health Organization, UNICEF, the World Bank, the United Nations Development Program, and the Rockefeller Foundation. Its success in accelerating childhood immunization led to an expansion in 1991 to include other issues that impact children. The task force, headquartered in nearby Decatur, was renamed the Task Force for Global Health and is affiliated with Emory.

Dr. Foege will be presented by President James Wagner.

graduated December 2015
Emory College of Arts and Sciences originated from a concern for higher education in a Christian setting on the part of the Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Chartered in 1836 in Oxford, Georgia, the college was named after John Emory (1789–1835), bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1964 the college at Oxford was named Oxford College of Emory University.

Emory College became Emory University by virtue of a charter granted by the Superior Court of DeKalb County on January 25, 1915. Although classes on the Atlanta campus were begun in the schools of law and theology as early as 1916, the college did not move to Atlanta until 1919. The University now includes nine schools, most tracing their origins to years before the chartering of the University itself. These schools are Emory College and Oxford College (1836), the School of Medicine (1854), Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing (1905), Candler School of Theology (1914), the School of Law (1916), Roberto C. Goizueta Business School (1919), the James T. Laney School of Graduate Studies (1919), and Rollins School of Public Health (1990).

The intent of the founders is perpetuated by the University’s vision statement: A destination university internationally recognized as an inquiry-driven, ethically engaged, and diverse community, whose members work collaboratively for positive transformation in the world through courageous leadership in teaching, research, scholarship, health care, and social action.

A Short History of Commencement at Emory

This is Emory’s 171st commencement. The exercises witnessed today represent an imposition of medieval academic tradition on an institution that had its roots in the 19th-century frontier. The first Emory commencement was held in 1840, four years after Emory College had been chartered and two years after the college’s first classes. That first ceremony, however, was without graduating students, as there were no graduates until the following year. Then, as now, sermons and addresses had a central focus in the exercises, though rarely have these addresses been so crucial as in 1849, when all 15 members of the graduating class were assigned speaking places and spoke for as long as half an hour each.

Early commencement audiences sat for up to four hours in the midsomer heat to listen to the numerous student and faculty orations on such topics as “Our Government Unfavorable to High Attainment in Literature,” “Social Equality,” and “Modern Refinements.” These addresses in the early days were in English, contrary to the practice at many other institutions. As President A. B. Longstreet argued in 1842, speeches in Latin and Greek were “worthy of the name pedantry, and nothing more.” In spite of this advice, several later generations of students instructed their audiences in the ancient tongues.

A Commentary on Commencement

Academic dress goes back to the founding of European universities, which were the products of the intellectual revival of the 12th century. All medieval students were clerks and consequently wore the dress of clergy. This is the academic costume we wear today, with certain changes introduced in the 16th century by Protestant reformers. The oldest articles of academic wear were the robe, over which was worn the habit, usually a kind of tunic with short, wide sleeves. The medieval hood was lined with fur or inexpensive skins and could be gathered around the neck or pulled up on the head as a turban. It is uncertain when different colors became associated with different degrees.

There were four kinds of caps: the round cap, reserved for doctoral dignity; the tena, a round cap with strings tied under the chin, worn by jurists; the square cap, and the Tudor bonnet. At Oxford University in 1565 the square cap became the norm, but the faculties that had become laicized adopted the Tudor bonnet that is still worn by doctoral candidates today. The basic design of all academic costume in the United States was first established in 1895 and was first used at Emory by the Class of 1902. The bachelor’s gown features an embroidered Emory University seal in gold thread and has long, pointed, open sleeves. The master’s gown has longer sleeves, which are closed at the bottom with openings about midway for the hands. Beginning in 2014, the bachelor’s and master’s gowns are made of fabric spun from molten plastic pellets from recycled water bottles. An average of 23 post-consumer plastic bottles are used to create each gown, furthering Emory’s commitment to sustainability initiatives. The doctor’s gown has full-length lapels of velvet and bell-shaped sleeves with three horizontal velvet bars. Tassels for bachelor’s and master’s caps are black; tassels of gold thread may be worn by doctors. Gowns and caps are usually black, although Emory and some other schools have specified that their doctors may wear gowns of distinctive colors. Yale’s deep blue doctoral gown, Harvard’s crimson, Columbia’s dark blue, and Emory’s blue and gold are a few that may be seen in the procession.

The hood varies for the respective degrees, the doctor’s hood being longer and fuller than the master’s. The field of study can be determined from the velvet facing on the hood according to the following color scheme: white, the arts; gold-yellow, science; purple, law; apricot, nursing; green, medicine; teal, physical therapy; scarlet, theology; salmon, public health; drab, business; and dark blue, doctors of philosophy. The hood is lined with silk in the colors of the degree-granting institution. For Emory graduates the lining is blue with a chevron of gold.

The president of Emory University wears a badge of office given to the University in 1965 by the Emory chapter, Gamma of Georgia, of Phi Beta Kappa. Designed by Eric Clements of Birmingham, England, and executed by the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths in London, the solid gold badge is an open tear drop enclosing the raised seal of the University and is suspended on a gold chain.

The chief marshal and deputy marshals lead the academic procession. The faculty marshals and the secretary of the University jointly manage the forming of the procession, the seating of commencement participants, and the planning of other aspects of commencement exercises. Marshals are identified by their unique blue tunics, which are sleeveless and lined with gold.

The Quadrangle stage with blue canopy was named the University Marshals’ Stage in honor of the dedication and service provided by Emory’s chief marshals throughout history.

The University mace is carried in the procession by the immediate past president of the Student Government Association. Academically the mace is the symbol of a university as a corporate body of scholars possessing its own jurisdiction and its own legally

The mace of Emory University, a gift from D.V.S., an Emory College senior honor society, was designed by Eric Clements and executed in silver and gold by the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths. In the teardrop at the apex of the mace, against a background of oxidized silver, is a freestanding representation in gold of a human skeleton. This is Dooley, the “spirit” of Emory, who traditionally “rises” once each spring and for a week rules campus. Immediately below the skeleton, in an open teardrop, is a gold sphere divided (by stippling) into eight segments. Topping the sphere is a simple cross, symbolizing the relationship of Emory University to the Methodist church. The seal of the University is sculptured in gold within the circular base.

Before each school in the procession, the school’s student marshal carries its gonfalon, a banner in the color associated with the respective school’s degree: medicine, green; public health, salmon; nursing, apricot; theology, scarlet; law, purple; and business, drab. The gonfalon of the graduate school is gold representing Emory’s gold, and the gonfalons of Emory College and Oxford College represent Emory’s blue.

Emory Alumni Legacy Medallion

Graduating students who have a parent, grandparent, and/or sibling who is also an Emory graduate are wearing specially commissioned medallions hanging from blue and gold ribbons. The medallions are expressions of the University’s gratitude to those families who have chosen to continue the Emory education tradition throughout the generations.

The Commencement Setting

Spectators on the Quadrangle are seated facing the former Pitts Theology Library, one of the two oldest buildings on the Atlanta campus. Designed by the distinguished Pittsburgh architect Henry Hornbostel (1867–1961), the Old Theology Building was the original theology building in 1916. It was renovated in 1975 by architect Paul Rudolph to house the expanded library collection of Candler School of Theology.

Directly behind the spectators are Carlos Hall, the other original campus building, and the expanded Michael C. Carlos Museum. Formerly home to the School of Law, Carlos Hall was renovated in 1986 according to a design by Michael Graves to house the museum and the Department of Art History. The museum is named for the philanthropist who donated most of the cost of the facility. It was designed to maintain the classic symmetry and proportion of the surrounding buildings, which are listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Bowden Hall, east of the museum, was constructed in 1951 in the same style as the original campus buildings. Originally the History Building, it was renamed in 1991 in honor of the late Henry L. Bowden, former chair of the Board of Trustees of Emory University. To the southeast of Bowden Hall is the Center for Library and Information Resources. The center joins the tall, red-tile-crowned Robert W. Woodruff Library and is linked to the Asa Griggs Candler Memorial Library at the east end of the Quadrangle. Candler Library was dedicated in 1926 in honor of the man who donated the land for the campus and who provided the University with strong leadership in its early years.

Next to the Old Theology Building is the Loula Walker and Ely Reeves Callaway Sr. Memorial Center. Thanks to a generous gift from alumnus Ely R. Callaway Jr. in honor of his parents, this center joins the former Humanities Building with the original Physics Building, which was constructed in 1919.

At the west end of the Quadrangle is the Administration Building (1955), a gift of Charles Howard Candler. Like his father, Asa, Charles chaired the Board of Trustees for many years. Between the Administration Building and the former Pitts Library sits the more modern White Hall, the main classroom building of Emory College. Above the trees on the north side of the Quadrangle are the curved red roof of the William R. Cannon Chapel—designed by Paul Rudolph and dedicated in 1981—and the towers of Emory University Hospital to the east.
