Donald G. Stein
Emergency Medicine

Promise of Progesterone in the Treatment of Traumatic Brain Injury and Stroke

Twenty-five years of pre-clinical research on progesterone treatment for brain injury led to two successful Phase II clinical trials. Two large Phase III trials are underway. Dr. Stein and his colleagues are obtaining more promising results in pre-clinical research on progesterone effects on ischemic stroke. This talk will survey the problems, science, and promise underlying their research.

Join the Discussion!

RSVP By 5/2/13
$7 Lunch Donation

Visit the EUEC Online
emory.edu/emeritus