Lunch Discussion
Monday, July 15, 2013

Michael McQuaide
Professor of Sociology
Oxford College

The Other Side of Immigration: Ecuador, America, and Coyotes

Immigration issues are a significant area of contention in the US because we are a receiving area. Little attention is paid to those nations labeled as sending areas. Dr. McQuaide recently interviewed 45 families in the Andes Mountains of Ecuador, an area he has often visited with students, to research the consequences of out-migration on those who remain in their native country.

Join the Discussion!