The Once and Future King: Arthur through the Ages

John Bugge is Professor Emeritus of English. As a Medievalist, he specializes in Chaucer, the Arthurian tradition, Middle English devotional literature of female spirituality, and the alliterative style. Bugge will give a quick survey of medieval and modern expressions of the complex myth of King Arthur and the Round Table, ranging from early medieval chronicle and romance to modern novels and long poems, with a focus on the "cultural work" the myth appears to do in each age that it is prominent.
