

WONDERLANDS

writing for younger readers and young-at-heart adults

a lecture by

Salman Rushdie

Distinguished Writer in Residence at Emory University

Sir Salman Rushdie is one of the world's best known writers of fiction and essays and a leading champion for human rights. His novel, Midnight's Children (1981), won Britain's most prestigious literary award, the Booker Prize, and was selected in 2008 as the best novel in 40 years of the Booker Prize.

The author of numerous distinguished novels, short stories, and essays, Rushdie is the author of two books for the young and young at heart, Haroun and the Sea of Stories (1990) and Luka and the Fire of Life (forthcoming Fall 2010).

A multi-media exhibition, A WORLD MAPPED BY STORIES, celebrating the opening of Rushdie's archive at Emory's Robert W. Woodruff Library, will be on display in the Library's Schatten Gallery from February 26 until September 26, 2010.
