

A Message from the President

Emory is fortunate to have faculty, staff, retirees, and administrators who are devoted to our great institution. Part of what makes our community strong is our shared love for the University, our support of Emory's vision, and our common commitment to the University's work at home and around the globe.

MyEmory offers faculty, staff, retirees, and administrators an abundance of creative ways to advance the University's work that matters most to them. Many dedicated members of our community have already made gifts toward MyEmory's $50 million goal, a remarkable achievement.

There's a truth among nonprofit institutions like ours, that "philanthropy spreads from the inside out." By supporting MyEmory, those of us who work here send a compelling message to our external partners and friends that we believe the University is a worthy investment. This is why I am grateful to those who have already joined me in pledging a gift. Thank you for encouraging others to pledge also, so that we can achieve the broadest possible participation.

James W. Wagner

PRESIDENT, EMORY UNIVERSITY

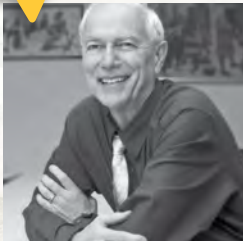

On the cover:

"Emory's commitment to a variety of community and social justice programs demonstrates the level of care for the Atlanta community and the world. I am an Emory donor so that I can make my small contribution to the improvement of humanity and the world we live in."

Alex Christian
PROVOST'S OFFICE

MyEmory goal: $50 million

"I have received more satisfaction from student response to our gift to Emory than anything else I have done in the past decade. My proudest moment at Emory is observing the incredible passion our students put into their studies, into student associations, and into work in the Atlanta public health community."

Roger Rochat
ROLLINS SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Emory University

EMORY'S 23,000 EMPLOYEES are spread throughout hundreds of offices on several campuses. Each of you has a unique Emory experience, but all of you are central to the University's success. With talents and time, employees give Emory the power to make new discoveries and address critical questions, to save lives and perform vital research, and to teach the next generation of leaders across the disciplines.

Emory people see firsthand the good that Emory does because they are an integral part of it. As an employee, you are pursuing your professional ambitions at Emory, and you are part of Emory's influence in the world. Now you can make an even greater difference with charitable gifts to Emory. You may be interested in art or the humanities, scholarships for students, research or clinical programs, or support for faculty or specific programs. Whatever your passion, there's a place at Emory where you can make your mark.

Each person has different means and abilities to give, but giving does make a difference. Whether you give annually, contribute to an endowment, include Emory in your estate plans, or establish a life-income gift, your participation matters. Whether you make a small gift or a large one, your gift counts.

"I give to organizations I value, and Emory is at the top of my list. I work here, my heart is here, and my money goes where my heart is. I want students to have the opportunities I've had for an Emory education."

SALLY LEHR 65N 76MSN
Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing
MyEmory Co-Chair

"I so very much believe in Emory's present, I honor its past, I have hope for its future, and I want to invest my donor dollars in an institution that matters, an institution that emphasizes ethics and morals in the advancement of its goals."

GINGER CAIN 77C 82G
Emory Libraries, MyEmory Co-Chair

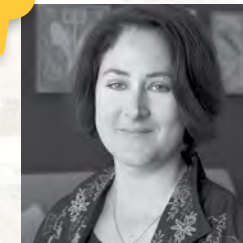

About MyEmory

EMORY EMPLOYEES have achieved great success. You have helped educate leaders, discover treatments for disease, increase understanding of humanity, and serve communities at home and abroad, among many other accomplishments. With success comes the responsibility to do more. MyEmory is a direct response to this call for action. The employee and retiree component of Emory's $1.6 billion fund-raising campaign, MyEmory offers those of you working across the University a powerful way to make a difference in the world.

Few organizations have the broad, comprehensive impact of a major research university. Through MyEmory, you can help Emory reach out to more communities and take on a growing number of challenges. Since the overall campaign began in 2005, thousands of Emory's employees have given. They weighed their charitable options and determined that Emory is a sound investment.

The goal of MyEmory is to raise $50 million by the end of 2012. You can support scholarships, patient care, research, and other priorities that will enable Emory to advance among the world's top universities and health care providers. The possibilities are endless.

"I direct a program that relies heavily on individual donations to succeed. Also, as a Candler alum, I know how important scholarships were for me to get through my program. I want others to have that, too. It isn't what you give, but that you give that matters."

Elizabeth Corrie
96T 02PhD
CANDLER SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY

MYEMORY

"Even giving a small amount makes an impact, and you feel proud for supporting such a great university because it enables individual students to grow and contribute back to society. Also, working at Emory, we can see that the University is using the resources wisely."

Harriet Ruskin 90MBA
GOIZUETA
BUSINESS SCHOOL

Ways to give

GIVING TO EMORY has never been more convenient. You can give online, by phone, or by mail and with a credit card, check, payroll deduction, or electronic funds transfer. You can include Emory in your will or make a life-income gift, which will provide for you and your family. You can even give stocks or real estate.

■ ONLINE: Emory's giving Web page is secure, so giving online is safe. To make an online gift with your credit card, visit emory.edu/give.

■ PHONE: Office of Annual Giving staff would be delighted to discuss your giving options or take your gift by phone. Call 404.727.6200.

■ MAIL OR ELECTRONIC FUNDS TRANSFER: These forms can be found at emory.edu/myemory/ways-to-give.

■ PAYROLL DEDUCTION: Current employees can visit emory.edu/home/faculty-staff, log in to PeopleSoft, and select "MyEmory."

■ BEQUESTS AND LIFE-INCOME GIFTS: To include Emory in your will or make a gift that improves your financial security, call the Office of Gift Planning at 404.727.8875 or visit emory.edu/giftplanning.

"Being a tenured professor is one of the few great privileges on the planet. I don't take it lightly, and I think it is very important to give back to the institution that has given so much to me."

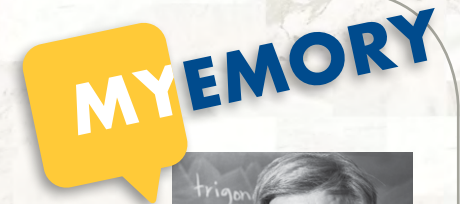

LAURIE PATTON
Emory College of Arts and Sciences

"I knew that I could never give thousands of dollars, but through Emory payroll deduction I could give the 'widow's mite' and God would bless it. Don't look at that top dollar figure, but look at the number of employees we have at Emory and, if we each gave that $10, $25, $40 a month, what that would add up to."

ANN EDENS
Woodruff Health Sciences Center

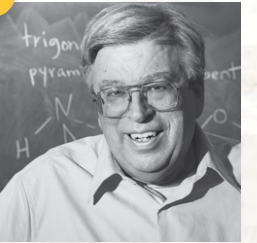

Give to your passion

EMPLOYEES who care about Emory and the world can find an intersection between their passions and Emory's strengths. MyEmory offers the perfect occasion to ask: How do you want to change the world for the better? Are you aware of the ways Emory is working in that area? Emory can be a powerful means to fulfill your aspirations.

Through MyEmory, you can invest in any of Emory's schools, colleges, programs, or units. Just designate your gift to the area of the University that interests you most. As an Emory employee, you will be able to see firsthand the difference your gift makes.

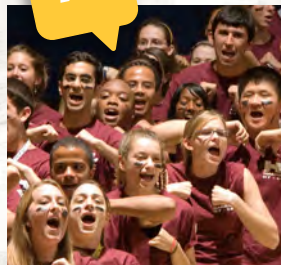

Emory needs every employee and retiree to help, not just with your gifts—although certainly with those—but also with your enthusiasm and your belief in what Emory will accomplish with these resources. Philanthropy spreads from the inside out. Your participation in MyEmory will inspire donors everywhere to get involved.

Your investment in the University—no matter what size—is valuable. Participate in MyEmory with your gift and join those who care deeply about Emory's success.

"Getting tenure was my proudest moment at Oxford because it meant I was going to spend the rest of my career here. I feel as if I should give something back for all that Oxford and Emory have given to me."

Lloyd Parker 74G
OXFORD COLLEGE

Campus Life

Programs in the Division of Campus Life enrich student life, build leadership, and enhance the academic experience. The Emory tradition of “Athletics for All” challenges and inspires the entire University by providing an example of community building and balance of body, mind, and spirit.

Volunteer Leader
Bridget Riordan
Dean of Students

Candler School of Theology

Candler students come from many places, but they share common goals: to gain education, insight, and practical skills for creative and faithful ministry. With world-renowned scholars, state-of-the-art facilities, and engaged, discerning students, Candler inspires and empowers leaders for Christian ministries.

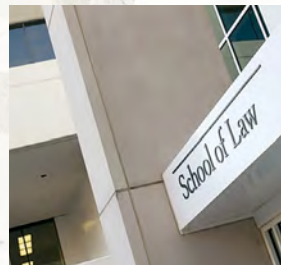

Volunteer Leader
Michelle Levan
*Assistant Director
Course of Study School*

Emory College of Arts and Sciences

Emory College offers an extraordinary environment for learning. In the midst of a major research university, Emory College students work closely with world-class scholars who offer life-changing discoveries. These committed teachers draw students out of their narrow individual experiences into the wide world of ideas.

Volunteer Leader
Matthew Bernstein
Professor and Chair, Film Studies

Emory Law

In a single generation, Emory Law has grown from a regional school to a national leader in legal education. Emory Law equips future lawyers with a practical and theoretical understanding of the law, preparing them for careers in firms, public interest law, business, government, and the judiciary.

Volunteer Leader
Liz Chilla
Assistant Manager of Communications

Emory Libraries

Emory’s Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library is home to the papers of some of the world’s most creative figures. Known internationally for holdings in modern literature and in African American history and culture, MARBL supports the work of scholars from a wide range of disciplines.

Volunteer Leader
Kim Collins
Art History Librarian

Emory School of Medicine

Born more than 150 years ago to care for the underserved in Atlanta, Emory School of Medicine has evolved from a respected regional pacesetter to an international presence with an enduring ethic. Emory has trained more than 32,000 physicians, including scientists whose discoveries have saved lives around the world.

Volunteer Leader
Andy Smith 84M 85MR
Associate Professor

Goizueta Business School

Goizueta Business School’s mission—developing principled leaders for global enterprise—emphasizes ethics, diversity, and commitment to the community. Students come to Goizueta to engage in the school’s thriving intellectual community, explore their own values, and develop leadership skills.

Volunteer Leader
Barbara Maaskant
Associate Dean

James T. Laney School of Graduate Studies

A vibrant community of discovery, the Laney Graduate School offers training across the humanities, social sciences, and the natural, biological, and biomedical sciences. Drawing on Emory’s tradition of engaged scholarship, the graduate school imbues students with expertise, creativity, and courage to explore complex questions.

Contact
Katie Busch
Senior Director of Development

Michael C. Carlos Museum

Since its 19th-century beginnings on Emory’s original campus in Oxford, Georgia, the Carlos Museum has become a tremendous resource, fueling scholarship and fostering understanding. By preserving and exploring the achievements of the mind and hand, the museum inspires lifelong learning.

Volunteer Leader
Joyce Daniels
Assistant to the Director

Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing

The Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing prepares students to become national leaders in nursing practice, research, and education. From caring for Atlanta’s homeless to reducing infant mortality worldwide, the school connects science and technology with the human experience.

Volunteer Leader
Joyce King 95G 04N
Assistant Professor

Oxford College of Emory University

Treasured as the birthplace of Emory University, Oxford College is a community of learning that turns promise into achievement. Students choose Oxford for its small classes, emphasis on teaching, and dedicated faculty—a creative combination of environment and ethos known as the Oxford experience.

Volunteer Leader
Jim Brown
Director of Academic Computing

Rollins School of Public Health

The Rollins School of Public Health is leading the world toward better health. In classrooms and across the globe, Rollins faculty, students, and alumni are designing programs to help eliminate deadly and disabling diseases and creating innovative methods of prevention through research.

Volunteer Leader
Roger Rochat
Research Professor

Winship Cancer Institute of Emory University

A National Cancer Institute-Designated Cancer Center, Winship focuses on translational research, the development of new technology, and the pursuit of answers through critical clinical trials. The designation gives patients access to more clinical trials and the most current and potentially lifesaving new therapies.

Contact
Vicki Riedel
Executive Director of Development

Yerkes National Primate Research Center

Yerkes is one of eight centers designated by the National Institutes of Health as a national primate research resource. Yerkes' groundbreaking discoveries depend on the advanced knowledge of researchers and staff who are committed to scientific discovery, the education of students, and the highest quality care of animals.

Volunteer Leader
Shayla Edmondson
Human Resources Specialist

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES

President and Secretary

The Office of the President helps carry forward Emory's mission of teaching, research, and service. The Office of the Secretary enhances University life through collaborative work with the Board of Trustees, the President's Cabinet, the University Senate, and other campus groups.

Volunteer Leader
Andrew Shahan
Guest Relations Manager

Provost

The provost is Emory's chief academic officer, responsible for maintaining the highest standards for the University's academic programs and people. Working with the deans, faculty, and senior administrators, the provost develops Emory's intellectual priorities, oversees the faculty, and directs other areas of academic life.

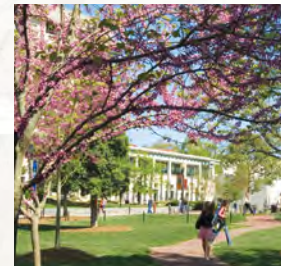

Volunteer Leader
Alex Christian
Web Communications Specialist

General Counsel

The Office of the General Counsel is Emory's go-to professional legal team for practical, ethical, and effective legal advice to further the University's collective efforts in achieving preeminence in research, teaching, and making people healthy. The office works with both Emory University and Emory Healthcare.

Volunteer Leader
Gloria Burkett
Executive Administrative Assistant

Finance and Administration

The Office of Finance and Administration makes sound financial, managerial, and strategic decisions needed to advance Emory as an internationally recognized destination university. The office's main purpose is to support Emory's president, the Board of Trustees, faculty, and students to achieve Emory's long-term strategic goals.

Volunteer Leader
Jocelyn Brewer
Executive Administrative Assistant

Development and Alumni Relations

Development and Alumni Relations is leading a new era of fund-raising at Emory to support implementation of the University's ambitious ten-year strategic plan. The plan calls for strengthening faculty distinction, ensuring the highest student quality, enhancing the student experience, and engaging with the larger community.

Volunteer Leader
Anne Stainback
Executive Administrative Assistant

Communications and Marketing

Communications and Marketing brings greater visibility to Emory as a leader in higher education. The office informs Emory's alumni, current and prospective students, parents, faculty and staff, patients, faith communities, friends, foundations, corporations, news media, and the general public.

Volunteer Leader
Susan Carini O4G
Executive Director Emory Creative Group

“Working directly in the area of finance, I see the need for funding, beyond tuition dollars, as critical to the mission of the institution. There are so many projects, programs, and opportunities that cannot succeed without this support.”

ANITA MANN, Emory Law

www.emory.edu/myemory

