The One Hundred Seventy-sixth

Commencement

May Fourteenth–Sixteenth, Two Thousand Twenty-one
The Alma Mater

IN THE HEART OF DEAR OLD EMORY
WHERE THE SUN DOTH SHINE,
THAT IS WHERE OUR HEARTS ARE TURNING
'ROUND OLD EMORY'S SHRINE.

WE WILL EVER SING THY PRAISES,
SONS AND DAUGHTERS TRUE.
HAIL WE NOW OUR ALMA MATER,
HAIL THE GOLD AND BLUE!

THO' THE YEARS AROUND US GATHER,
CROWNED WITH LOVE AND CHEER,
STILL THE MEMORY OF OLD EMORY
GROWS TO US MORE DEAR.

WE WILL EVER SING THY PRAISES,
SONS AND DAUGHTERS TRUE.
HAIL WE NOW OUR ALMA MATER,
HAIL THE GOLD AND BLUE!

—J. Marvin Rast 1918C 29T

The Marion Luther Brittain Service Award is presented each year to two graduating students (one undergraduate and one graduate) from any academic division of the university who are considered to have performed the most “significant, meritorious, and devoted service to Emory University.” Considered the highest honor presented to a student by Emory University, the Brittain Award recognizes two students whose contributions to Emory are outstanding. The award is made under provisions of a gift by the late M. L. Brittain, former president of the Georgia Institute of Technology and alumnus of Emory.

Genevieve Elyse Wilson 21C
Undergraduate Recipient

At the time of her acceptance to Emory, Genevieve Wilson earned a Woodruff Scholarship—the university’s most competitive, full-tuition scholarship. Among the extensive criteria for the scholarship recipients are “leadership and clear potential for enriching the lives of their contemporaries at Emory University.”

In Wilson’s case, the ensuing four years have been an occasion for demonstrating how thoroughly she embodies the traits of Woodruff Scholars. Equally impressive is the fact that Wilson gravitated to roles requiring significant work and little fanfare, choosing to strengthen infrastructure and develop leadership among her peers in order to increase the impact of Emory organizations.

Before the pandemic made in-person trips impossible, Wilson coordinated every aspect of thirty Volunteer Emory service trips per week for students—managing all logistics and planning with partner community organizations, supervising five student workers, and running the volunteer trainings that ensured the success of these ventures. In fall 2020, Wilson organized virtual service trips to ensure that Volunteer Emory still could contribute to the local community.

Serving as Emory Food Chain’s service executive for two years and president beginning in fall 2020, Wilson led efforts to recover more than seven thousand pounds of fresh food surplus from Emory’s dining halls each year and redistribute it to Atlantans experiencing food insecurity.

Emory Food Chain replaced what had been Emory’s chapter of the national organization Campus Kitchens. When Wilson joined, membership was lagging. Drawing inspiration from a food justice-themed alternative spring break trip, Wilson imagined the practice of volunteer recruitment, focusing on building coalitions with other social justice and service organizations. Her approach helped increase membership by more than 50 percent, and it gave the group the courage to develop new programming and pursue an independent agenda as Emory Food Chain.

Wilson also founded Rice, Beans, and Southern Greens, which collaborates with regional farmers to increase access to fresh produce in Atlanta’s food deserts by hosting pop-up farmers’ markets outside convenience stores. Staffed by a diverse crew of Emory students, the group is another example of Wilson’s striking ability to expand her peers’ investment in community.

Since 2018, Wilson served as president of the Emory Undergraduate Neuroscience Association (EUNA), and she was a STEM mentor for students new to the Neuroscience and Behavioral Biology program. EUNA strengthens Emory’s intellectual community, connecting undergraduates to an array of Emory faculty, researchers, graduate students, and clinicians.

In addition to achieving an exceptional academic record, Wilson was an orientation leader, trained new altar servers for the Emory Catholic Center, and mentored emerging student leaders through Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society.

Upholding the highest standards of service herself and helping shape student leaders who follow, Wilson has more than fulfilled the pledge she lives by: “Give light and darkness will disappear of itself.”

Eunji Lisa Chung 21MPH
Graduate Recipient

The pandemic has left some people feeling less productive—not so for Lisa Chung. She leveraged her skills to create transformative impact at the Rollins School of Public Health, at Emory more broadly, and among vulnerable communities in the state of Georgia.

As a co-founder of the Rollins Election Day Initiative (REDI), Chung motivated peers and faculty to become or remain civically engaged, recognizing the inextricable link between voting and public health. Her efforts included planning and running voter registration events.

She also partnered with Emory Votes to share messaging and expand reach to the entire university community. REDI will be carried forward in years to come, having made a lasting impact on the Rollins culture. It was also the first initiative at any school of public health in the country to recognize Election Day as a day “on.”

When Emory transitioned to virtual instruction in spring 2020, epidemiology students such as Chung were in a challenging position: they felt a strong desire to apply lessons they were learning in the classroom to living during a pandemic, all while being physically separated.

Chung addressed these needs by creating the COVID-19 Journal Club, which achieved two key ends: the weekly sessions helped students learn about the most up-to-date research on the virus and also provided a sense of community students were craving. Chung also served as the student co-leader for a reading group focused on epidemiology students—the EPICurious Bookclub.

When a Rollins professor created the Emory COVID-19 Outbreak Response Team this past spring to respond to a growing outbreak in poultry plant workers in northern Georgia, Chung was one of the first students she recruited.

They traveled across the state providing COVID-19 testing in the hardest-hit communities. For six weeks in the summer, Chung and teammates rode school bus routes in Hall County to provide more than five thousand face masks and age-appropriate prevention messages about COVID-19 to Latinx communities as well as 3,500 meals to more than one thousand families. Chung led much of the work with the school systems and was part of creating videos to train cafeteria workers and bus drivers on COVID-19 safety.

She worked at more than twenty-two weekend testing clinics providing more than six thousand COVID-19 tests. She has collected data used by the Food and Drug Administration for five different COVID-19 testing modalities, changing the way COVID-19 is tested across the country.

With extraordinary determination, Chung used the presence of COVID-19 to learn about field epidemiology; explore the field of public health in the country to recognize Election Day as a day “on.”

IN DESCRIBING HER OWN JOURNEY TO BECOME A PHYSICIAN, Jada Bussey-Jones cites her grandparents, whom she describes as “having limited access to care and low trust based in part on their experiences of racism.” Their deaths from preventable conditions led to Bussey-Jones’s interest in medicine and health equity.

Bussey-Jones founded the Social Medicine Work Group in the Division of General Internal Medicine. This group of faculty pursues educational projects, research, and community service with regard to underserved populations.

Her commitment to mitigate health disparities and address social determinants of health is reflected in her research and vocation as chief of general medicine and geriatrics at Grady Memorial Hospital, where she works to improve access and quality of care for patients.

As director of education, she also is an integral part of Emory’s Urban Health Initiative, which works with low-resourced communities in Atlanta to advance health equity.

Bussey-Jones has led several initiatives targeting health promotion and disease prevention for vulnerable populations. She developed curricula on cultural competence, disparities, and social determinants of health for students, residents, and faculty and was recognized with an Educational Innovation Award.

She also chaired the National Disparities Education Task Force for the Society of General Internal Medicine and edited a special issue of the Journal of General Internal Medicine dedicated to disparities education. Her leadership resulted in an award-winning national disparities course, web-based educational modules, and two national symposia on disparities.

Her contributions to the education of future caregivers are unparalleled. Says one student, “She balances immense scientific and social medicine knowledge with an ability to explain concepts in digestible terms to patients (and students!) and their family members.”

Her work has been recognized with numerous awards, including the American College of Physicians, Georgia Chapter Community Service Award (2007); Emory’s Nanette Wenger Service Award (2009); Dean’s Teaching Award (2013); and the Society of General Internal Medicine National Award for Mentorship in Education (2014).

Bussey-Jones’s work has been recognized with numerous awards, including the American College of Physicians, Georgia Chapter Community Service Award (2007); Emory’s Nanette Wenger Service Award (2009); Dean’s Teaching Award (2013); and the Society of General Internal Medicine National Award for Mentorship in Education (2014).

Since entering the faculty ranks at Emory in 1988 and beginning to treat patients at Grady Memorial Hospital, Ruth Parker has worked to develop and promote national health literacy guidelines so that all patients, regardless of education level, can follow a treatment plan.

One of the first things Parker noticed was that patients in the emergency room were completing surveys without reading them—because they couldn’t. At the time, the term “health literacy” did not exist; it became broadly understood and valued as a result of Parker’s efforts. Indeed, her definition of health literacy is incorporated in the Affordable Care Act.

Committed to improving the health and health care of underserved patients, Parker recognized that increasing health literacy meant improved health outcomes, fewer adverse events, and reduced costs through more appropriate use of services. Her contributions led to highly visible policy initiatives by the American Medical Association and the American College of Physicians.

Most recently, Parker championed the revision of medication labels as a means of creating more patient-centered and health-literate information. Influential industry groups such as US Pharmacopeia and the National Council for Prescription Drug Programs have embraced her drive to improve the content and format of these labels.

She also identified health insurance as an area needing improved health literacy. Parker has built partnerships with insurers and policy experts as well as with consumers and patients. When working on making health information more understandable, Parker includes patients in both the design and implementation.

Her honors include the Silver Achievement Award in Medicine from the American Association of Medical Colleges, given to those who “have contributed substantially to the development of women in academic medicine” (2001), the Walter C. Alvarez Award from the American Medical Writer’s Association for “excellence in communicating health care developments and concepts to the public” (2005), the Cecilia and Leonard Doak Award—“National Health Literacy Champion” from Health Literacy Missouri, and Mastership in the American College of Physicians (2015).

In 2000, Parker and another Emory faculty member created the Medicine and Compassion course offered through the Emory Italian Studies Summer Abroad program. It uses art and architecture, literature and landscape, cuisine and culture, and cross-disciplinary discussions to encourage a deeper understanding of compassion and healing.

THE EMMY WILLIAMS AWARDS FOR DISTINGUISHED TEACHING

The university’s oldest awards for teaching were established in 1972 by alumnus Emory Williams 32C. Awards in the arts and sciences are determined by a committee of Emory College faculty. Emory College gives three of these awards each year, while other schools of the university give one award.

THE ORDER OF AMMON

The Order of Ammon is a secret society at Emory whose members are chosen due to their merit, character, imagination, and persistent commitment to better Emory and the world at large. The order differentiates itself by striving to create an inclusive community on campus. Ammon does not reveal its six graduating members.

THE DOBBS SOCIETY

The Dobbs Society recognizes exemplary leaders who leave a profoundly positive impact on the residential community through significant contributions and service to Emory’s residence hall community.

Emory College of Arts and Sciences originated from a concern for higher education in a Christian setting on the part of the Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Chartered in 1836 in Oxford, Georgia, the college was named after John Emory (1789–1835), bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1964 the college at Oxford was named Oxford College of Emory University.

Emory College became Emory University by virtue of a charter granted by the Superior Court of DeKalb County on January 25, 1915. Although classes on the Atlanta campus were begun in the schools of law and theology as early as 1916, the college did not move to Atlanta until 1919. The university now includes nine schools, most tracing their origins to years before the chartering of the university itself. These schools are Emory College and Oxford College (1836), the School of Medicine (1854), Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing (1905), Candler School of Theology (1914), the School of Law (1916), Roberto C. Goizueta Business School (1919), the James T. Laney School of Graduate Studies (1919), and Rollins School of Public Health (1990).

The intent of the founders is perpetuated by the university’s vision statement: A destination university internationally recognized as an inquiry-driven, ethically engaged, and diverse community, whose members work collaboratively for positive transformation in the world through courageous leadership in teaching, research, scholarship, health care, and social action.

A Short History of Commencement at Emory

This is Emory’s 176th commencement. The exercises witnessed these three days represent an imposition of medieval academic tradition on an institution that had its roots in the nineteenth-century frontier. The first Emory commencement was held in 1840, four years after Emory College had been chartered and two years after the college’s first classes. That first ceremony, however, was without graduating students, as there were no graduates until the following year. Then, as now, sermons and addresses had a central focus in the exercises, though rarely have these addresses been so crucial as in 1849, when all fifteen members of the graduating class were assigned speaking places and spoke for as long as half an hour each.

Early commencement audiences sat for up to four hours in the midsummer heat to listen to the numerous student and faculty orations on such topics as “Our Government Unfavorable to High Attainment in Literature,” “Social Equality,” and “Modern Refinements.” These addresses in the early days were in English, contrary to the practice at many other institutions. As President A. B. Longstreet argued in 1842, speeches in Latin and Greek were “worthy of the name pedantry, and nothing more.” In spite of this advice, several later generations of students instructed their audiences in the ancient tongues.

Emory Alumni Legacy Medallion

Graduating students who have a parent, grandparent, and/or sibling who is also an Emory graduate are wearing specially commissioned medallions hanging from blue and gold ribbons. The medallions are expressions of the university’s gratitude to those families who have chosen to continue the Emory education tradition throughout the generations.

A Commentary on Commencement

Academic dress goes back to the founding of European universities, which were the products of the intellectual revival of the twelfth century. All medieval students were clerks and consequently wore the dress of clergy. This is the academic costume we wear today, with certain changes introduced in the sixteenth century by Protestant reformers. The oldest articles of academic wear were the robe, over which was worn the habit, usually a kind of tunic with short, wide sleeves. The medieval hood was lined with fur or inexpensive skins and could be gathered around the neck or pulled up on the head as a turban. It is uncertain when different colors became associated with different degrees.

There were four kinds of caps: the round cap, reserved for doctoral dignity; the tena, a round cap with strings tied under the chin, worn by jurists; the square cap, and the Tudor bonnet. At Oxford University in 1565 the square cap became the norm, but the faculties that had become laicized adopted the Tudor bonnet that is still worn by doctoral candidates today. The basic design of all academic costume in the United States was first established in 1895 and was first used at Emory by the Class of 1902. The bachelor’s gown features an embroidered Emory University seal in gold thread and has long, pointed, open sleeves. The master’s gown has longer sleeves, which are closed at the bottom with openings about midway for the hands. Beginning in 2014, the bachelor’s and master’s gowns are made of fabric spun from molten plastic pellets from recycled water bottles. An average of twenty-three post-consumer plastic bottles are used to create each gown, furthering Emory’s commitment to sustainability initiatives. The doctor’s gown has full-length lapels of velvet and bell-shaped sleeves with three horizontal velvet bars. Tassels for bachelor’s and master’s caps are black; tassels of gold thread may be worn by doctors. Gowns and caps are usually black, although Emory and some other schools have specified that their doctors may wear gowns of distinctive colors. Yale’s deep blue doctoral gown, Harvard’s crimson, Columbia’s dark blue, and Emory’s blue and gold are a few that may be seen in the procession.

The hood varies for the respective degrees, the doctor’s hood being longer and fuller than the master’s. The field of study can be determined from the velvet facing on the hood according to the following color scheme: white, the arts; gold-yellow, science; purple, law; apricot, nursing; green, medicine; teal, physical therapy; scarlet, theology; salmon, public health; drab, business; and dark blue, doctors of philosophy. The hood is lined with silk in the colors of the degree-granting institution. For Emory graduates the lining is blue with a chevron of gold.

The president of Emory University wears a badge of office given to the university in 1965 by the Emory chapter, Gamma of Georgia, of Phi Beta Kappa. Designed by Eric Clemens of Birmingham, England, and executed by the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths in London, the solid gold badge is an open teardrop enclosing the raised seal of the university and is suspended on a gold chain.

The mace of Emory University, a gift from D.V.S., an Emory College senior honor society, was designed by Eric Clemens and executed in silver and gold by the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths. In the teardrop at the apex of the mace, against a background of oxidized silver, is a freestanding representation in gold of a human skeleton. This is Dooley, the “spirit” of Emory, who traditionally “rises” once each spring and for a week rules campus. Immediately below the skeleton, in an open teardrop, is a gold sphere divided (by stippling) into eight segments. Topping the sphere is a simple cross, symbolizing the relationship of Emory University to the Methodist church. The seal of the university is sculptured in gold within the circular base.

Academically the mace is the symbol of a university as a corporate body of scholars possessing its own jurisdiction and its own legally constituted authority. Traditionally the mace is borne in procession immediately before the chief officer of a university and is placed before them during formal academic ceremonies.
